Fruit Ridge Notes - Apples - Saturday - June 24 - 2017

Hey Guys.... Just Finished a Brief Discussion

.....about

....FireBlight in some Producing Blocks... and some Beautiful-High-Dollar-Non-Bearing Youngns....

You can see on the Agrian Web-Site that CS2005 ["005"] is Labeled for Zero [-0-] Da.P.H.I. on all Apples.... with the same crazy 48 Hr.REI that all the Coppers have.

It says the Use-Rate is 51.2 oz - 64 oz.--Acre.

Most of you know that "005" is PPM-Sensitive.... So the 'Rule-of-Thumb' most Guys are doing is the 1 Qt--50 Gal-Water-Acre. If they do 25 gal., they go 1 pint '005' ...and it works great. If you have a really severe issue, you can do 1 Qt. in 25 Gal.Water-Acre if you want to....Works Great.... with No Phyto issues.... "005" is also OMRI Listed.

.....Also....

Most of you know all about the Synergy, and some of you have been using a 'Phite' with the CS2005 ["005"]While according to the Labeling on most all Phites and most all traditional Copper products, mixing the two is highly ill-advised.

But....

The "005" and our FormulaII-SW [phite] and also the K-Phite 7LP get along in the Tank just great together. It's because of the way they are formulated and the Ingredients used... No BiProducts from Industry...All Pure-Virgin-Grade-Hi-Dollar stuff.

There must be 20 - 30 other Phites out there...at a very wide range of pricing....but most are priced at about the same as my 2 Faves, with only a couple of them being a lot higher.... But some of those will cause a mess...a huge Cottage-Cheese-Head-Ache if mixed with traditional Coppers....

.....Maybe not a mess when mixing with "005" ...?? But why risk it when you can use the absolute Best Phites at the $same Dollar$ per-acre as the junk-Phites...???

Using 3 Pint-Acre FormulaII-SW or K-Phite7LP is really Smart Money.

Looking on page 42 of the MSU-E-154 you can see 10 different Phites.....All with the EPA-Fungicide-Bactericide Labeling.... But the only 1 in that list that is made the same way as my Formula-II-SW is the K-Phite 7LP
