Happy Saturday AM All Ya's....

Hoping Your Weekend is Starting Off in a Grand Fashion ..

Had a Little Happy Hour up at Dads Barn last Eve for Brother Bobs 79th Birthday What a Good Ol Boy.... Good Time had by All

Yup ...Kudos and Apogee both have a 45 Da.PHI

As soon as you can catch a breath, it'd be a good idea to sit down with your "'Rough-Draft-Work-Book-Spray-Records"'and maybe go ahead and start the Official Recording thing.... Remember "'Agrian.com/labelcenter/results"' is a huge help for details...and of course the MSU-E-154-Pgs 320--331 are huge in keeping you soundly-square with the necessary Detailing for your "Audits" All that Stuff just keeps getting more & more intense....

I know a lot of You Guys that already go ahead and enter each Appln as soon as it's doneright on into your Program on the Computer. That might be the best way....??? ...If you can take the time every time...??

There is just so much In-depth Discussion ...On & On & On

.... About all the various conditions that cause ... or really help promote the BitterPit problems in so many of our favorite and most profitable Apple Varieties. But all the Theories and Strategies all come back to the same spot "Just keep plenty of Calcium going onto that Tree Foliage and Fruitlets." And also remember how some of the Guys are getting superb results with doing several Apps of Calcium into the WeedControl Strip. To get to the Extreme-Levels of Control & Prevention that some of these Guys have reached, we just can't use the ol CaChloride.

We have several very Top-Shelf-Hi-Tech-Hi-Performance Calciums.... All of these have really serious Attributes

You Might Very Likely Have Several Varieties where you can maybe still use MycoShield"OxyTet" ...?? ...which carries a 60 Da.P.H.I.... But remember that OxyTet really helps only as a Protectant.... You would need to be able to accurately predict the Trauma-Event in order to not waste your $16.95-per-Acre cost of a 1 lb.Appln....
